DESCRIP: While a couple of rim marks are noted as well as a scrape on the central reverse this coin does have one quite unusual feature. Liberty's profile is doubled, from her chin to her upper curls, just below ER. Tan with some mottled verdigris. Perhaps the dies shifted slightly during the striking process, and very similar to the 1804 Cohen-13 with the doubled profile on Liberty a few lots back.

DESCRIP: Here is one of the <MI>rarest<M> coins in this extensive series. In fact, Roger owned only 1 example of this die pairing, whereas he often acquired two or more of the other rarities. The surfaces could be a bit better, but the color is tan and the strike is sharp for this variety. Some faint scratches run parallel at a 60<198> descending angle on the obverse, mostly confined to Liberty. In addition, a wavy scrape can be seen just above Liberty's bust. On the reverse, the strike is bold from the rim to the wreath, then weak on HALF CENT. At the center of the reverse is a series of shallow marks, where some bored ~~barbarian~~ blockhead tapped a blunt instrument repeatedly. We mention this not to detract from the coin, but merely to enumerate its minor problems, for we must remember that this is no common variety, but one of the better examples of this die pairing known. And a rare pairing it is, one of the few Rarity-6's to stand the test of time. This one probably is ~~tied at the low end of~~ 1.176 the Condition Census, the best pair rating only on 5 # Very Fine. An important opportunity. 11)
DIE_STATE: As Mr. Cohen discusses in his book, why this reverse die was discarded is unknown, aside from the weakness at the center, no breaks or cracks are known. The obverse was later used on the Cohen-3 pairing of this year and it elects to fail by massive swelling in the right field. No trace of the obverse swelling is seen on this example.

DESCRIP: Moderate porosity on both sides, visible in the fields.
However, wear on the devices reduces the effect. On the reverse, someone has scratched both above and below the right side of the wreath, above LF and under MER. While this coin is scarce in any grade, it is decidedly rare with only a trace of the obverse bulge, and should therefore attract the attention of die state specialist even with its minor problems.
DIE_STATE: The obverse shows only a trace of the bulge in the ~~left~~ ^{right} field, and this is clear even with the porosity. Weak at the central reverse on H and CE, as usual, for this variety. Finally, the die chip (or engraver's scratch) from the right foot of A3 is not visible, perhaps due to the porosity.

DESCRIP:

Choice medium brown ~~color~~^{glossy} and surfaces too! For this coin to be appreciated, the collector need look no further than the Condition Census. Opening Roger's second edition, his Census reads ~~(1) EF<197>VF (3)<197>F (7)~~. Perhaps a few others have been discovered in the past nine years, but this coin clearly resides in the top 6 known. Identifiable by a mark above and left of the ribbon, another horizontal one in the upper curls, starting near the top of her forehead. On the reverse a glass finds scattered circulation marks, mostly near the center where the weak strike contributed to this affliction. This variety has long been known as the "Small 5, Stems" 1805. However, confusion arises in that there are two die pairings that fulfill this qualification, both the Cohen-2 and Cohen-3. Therefore, we have selected the fraction bar as the determining factor, it begins above the center of the 2 on Cohen-2, and near the left edge of the 2 on Cohen-3. In either case, any "Small 5, Stems" is a find as both are quite rare. A foremost rarity in choice condition, one worthy of a strong bid.

DIE_STATE: Unlike the previous coin, the right field shows strong sinking from the Y down to Liberty's bust, as each successive strike caused the swelling to grow and deepen. Additionally, small pits formed in the die, the most obvious close to the dentils straight across from the tip of Liberty's nose. The final diagnostic, the chip or engraver's scratch, is sharp from the right serif of A3 toward the ribbon.

DESCRIP: Dark brown color, evenly distributed on both sides. A pair of ancient scratches above the ribbon, and a small mark below the chin are about the only marks worth noting. On the reverse, circulation marks are evident, mostly near the center, as the weakness in this area allowed the central reverse to collect more marks than the protected outer rims. This is one of the many challenges of designing coins: keeping the fields busy enough with devices to protect the smooth fields from the numerous marks that occur during circulation. First of all, high rims with dentils protect the entire coin, then the highest devices (such as Liberty's hair, the lettering, wreath etc...) receive the most marks, and lastly, only well directed marks settle in the surrounding fields by missing these devices. On this die pairing, the central reverse is usually poorly struck, allowing a higher number of marks to become visible, rather than hidden by the devices.

GRADE NO: 60 ~~SS~~ SS

DESCRIP: A lovely specimen of this common variety, one which exudes ^{Traded mint with fan.} the quite elegance of Gilbert Stuart's classical rendition of Liberty. As we have stated, and here again hammer on this important point, Draped Bust Half Cents in Mint State are <MI>rare.<M> Only a few small hoards have been discovered, these now widely dispersed. But this is as it should be, for where was our country during this infancy period? Chaos reigned. Coins from various world countries circulated along with our issues and many areas had never seen a coin from the new Philadelphia Mint by 1805. The dribble produced out of Philadelphia usually circulated, and circulated hard until they were lost, buried or returned for recoinage. Few were saved. Even fewer survive in a grade approaching Mint State. The point we are trying to make is that we heartily recommend the purchase of at least one example from these high grade coins offered herein. Identifiable by a vertical mark before Liberty's neck and a small spot on the B. The reverse is even nicer, one tiny stain on the left side of O shows that this is the plate coin from both editions of Roger's book. ^{Most the mint later has turned in over 10 years. This is not a glossy & appealing. Tied up several others that just in. A.S.}

DIE_STATE: One of the middle die states, with a crack connecting the base of 18, another up from the left side (lower) of 1 which just misses the curl into field, and yet another through the base of LIBERT and middle of Y into field toward the rim. A heavy, lumpy break connects the top of 1 to the lower loop of the 8, and a similar lumpy break extends up into the field from the second curl from the bottom. Much of the obverse die exhibits roughness, from improper annealing or polishing, and this feature is seen on most examples. On the reverse, triple clash marks are clear along the left side of the wreath, between the leaves. Lastly, the chip from the right serif of the A is clear.

DESCRIP: Excellent steel brown color on either side, which combines the choice of the AU's in the and listed and the 2nd finest of these come from with hints of mint luster and lots of charm to produce a very eye appealing example of the late die state. Free of handling marks and the high points show only a hint of wear (actually cabinet friction), so be prepared to pay a premium for this specimen, its well worth it. One tiny planchet lamination below the 5 and a speck is located left of the L. Boldly struck and an impressive coin! with lots of cartilage DIE_STATE: The obverse die state had greatly deteriorated since the prior coin was struck. Numerous chips and fissures appear in the obverse fields, including a strong example of Gilbert's "diminutive Goatee" on Liberty's chin. Observations confirm the crack through the bases of LIBERTY extending beyond in either direction, another crack connecting the bases of 18 well up into the left field below the curls, another through the middle of 18 with lumps and a similar lumpy one up from the second curl into the field. Lastly, another crack from the rim to the 5, bust and well into the field on the right. Aside from this collection of cracks, the reverse has its own evidence of aging. The triple clash marks appear to have been ground down a bit, although two show clearly, others more faintly. Above ES O the dentils have faded away, and this may be evidence of rim break, as others are clear and sharp nearby. One for the specialist to study and admire.

DESCRIP: Steel blue with greenish hints about either side, with abundant original luster combining to make a most beautiful example of this variety. An arc of toning extends from C1 to the rim above I1 on the reverse. Here again, this workhorse "No Stems" reverse die was pulled off the shelf to strike another bin full of Half Cents. It had been used in both 1804 and again in 1805, always producing a large number of coins. This coin is identifiable by a small planchet flake below F1 on the reverse, the only other item to note are a few scattered spots in the right obverse field. One would be hard put to find a better one, although several exist in Mint State. One of the most common Half Cent varieties.
DIE_STATE: On the obverse, slight weakness is noted at the top of LIB, otherwise well struck. By the time this coin was struck, the obverse die had clashed with the reverse, and clash marks are visible on either side of Liberty. The reverse rim has a small cud just below the right ribbon end, which formed during the tail end of production of the 1805 Cohen-1 No Stems variety.
One confusing error in Gilbert's 1916 variety book on Half Cents was the notation that top of 6 touches the drapery. For many years (the Gilbert referenced book being the standard reference book until Roger printed his first edition in 1971) cataloguers listed 1806 Half Cents as "not in Gilbert" but with dies very similar to G-1 because the 6 did not touch the drapery.

One area of red corrosion surrounds Liberty, a bit above her head, but mostly before her face and below, extending to the rim near her bust. A few trivial scratches on her lower curls and drapery, remain neatly hidden by the devices. Trivial scrapes can be found with a glass, some in the left field, others on Liberty, but none detracting or very annoying. Turning to the reverse, nearly all of which is covered with carpet of red corrosion, a glass fails to find any significant marks. One arc from E1 to T3 remains the brown color of the obverse. As we have mentioned previously, copper tends to attract this type of surface over long periods, for copper is an active metal which reacts with the air, forming corrosion. In this case, an even layer of red color, with the appearance of a dusting of paint, is present over much of the coin. But the important point remains that this is a <MI>Cohen-3<M>, not a fact to be taken lightly to be sure. For only a handful exist in all grades. DESCRIP: Undoubtedly from the large hoard dispersed by the Chapman brothers after the turn of this century, this one without the annoying spots and enticing original red near the devices. The balance of the coin is brown. Free of handling marks or problems and well struck on all but the upper leaves and S2 as is common to this die pairing.
DIE_STATE: A large hoard was found long enough after production to allow most to be retained in Mint State and not spent. One of the only "common" draped bust Half Cents in Mint State. This particular coin has the ever present weakness at the top of the wreath and S2, but shows nearly all of the drapery lines and excellent definition on Liberty's curls. The reverse is rotated about 20<198>. Repunching on the 6 is still sharp.

 DESCRIP: Nearly identical in color and surfaces to the preceeding example, ~~this one also~~ has lovely mint red near the devices with the balance of the coin a medium brown. Liberty's drapery lines have less definition as do the upper leaves of the wreath. The ES are weak. Scattered handling marks, none major. If you missed the last one, be sure to stretch for this coin, it is well worth it. Here again, a magnificent Half Cent that would be the highlight of most collections.
 DIE_STATE: The reverse die had only slightly rotated when this coin was struck, with the typical weakness described above. A tiny rim break is noted above the B on the obverse, which covers the outer half of three dentils. ~~This break is also visible on the previous coin, but the centering makes it nearly impossible to see.~~ Perhaps this is the beginning of the break which spans from rim to rim through the tops of ERTY.

from circulation, one on the rim below the Y, another above the bust. Struck about 10% off-center toward the date, with about half of the digits missing, the reverse also off-center with the tops of TATES OF A partially gone.
Usual late die state with very weak dentils. An error for the specialist, and great for die state study as the rims of 1807 Half Cents are normally so weak, here at least half of the detail is extra sharp (what little detail there is, of course).
DIE_STATE: It is clear from this coin that the dentils had been nearly ground off both dies. For the rim is bold along the off-center portion, and only a trace of the dentils are present, the strongest above the bust and below the fraction.

Two reverse marks can be used for identification, one below O at the center of the triple leaf tip, another on the top right ribbon bow. Struck perfectly centered on the obverse, but completely misaligned on the reverse, so that the tops of MERICA and the fraction are missing. The wreath is also weak in this area. However, the important cracks are clear on the tops of ITED and the other at the tops of STATE.  DESCRIP: Olive steel atop the usual even brown color on either side. The obverse has corrosion, some in the form of tiny pits, with two larger areas, one in either field. Similarly, the reverse has corrosion and pitting. As exhibited on the other 7 examples known, all were struck with misaligned dies, so that the rim over TED STAT is very strong, while the rim above AMERICA and the fraction is very weak. Curiously, the obverse is well struck and centered on this variety. This misalignment placed additional pressure with each strike on this strong point of the rim, causing the reverse die to break. However, when this example was struck, only a hint of the break had formed from the rim to the tops of STAT, making this one of the earliest die states known. As the reverse quickly broke apart, only a handful were struck, to date the Condition Census lists 8 coins, with this example a single notch below the previous offering, as the <MI>Sixth Finest Known.<M> Missing from nearly every major collection of Half Cents, including our extensive Jack Robinson Sale. This variety was discovered by Roger Cohen in 1952. And to date, only a few others known and all are currently locked away in very strong hands, and will likely remain so for the foreseeable future.
 DIE_STATE: It is hard to believe that the Very Fine and Finest Known example of this variety was purchased as a Gilbert-1 (Cohen-2 now) a scant 21 years ago by a now famous Half Cent collector, who traded it for several other enticing Large Cents. This Very Fine coin is now firmly locked away in a mid-west collection. Likewise, the others known reside comfortably in various other variety collections. Unless a few others turn up as type or <BI>Redbook coins, this die pairing will continue in the steps of the famous 1795 Sheldon-79 Large Cent, with several collectors needing only this one variety to complete their collections. Luckily for collectors, two examples are now available from the Cohen collection, and two more collectors can finally purchase this variety. A very early die state for this die pairing, and may well be one of the first coins struck, with only a light crack from the rim to the STAT at top. No trace of the crack is visible above ITED, although the roughness obscures what evidence there may be.

DESCRIP: Delightful dark milk chocolate throughout! Furthermore, the surfaces are clean, and nearly free of serious contact marks. One tiny rim bump below the 1 of the date and a tiny speck just beneath the upper leaves will serve to hallmark this coin. And too, the strike is bold, well centered on the obverse, a bit off to the lower right on the reverse, making the rim on the left strong and heavy (by the way, this is not a Cohen-1, although this is diagnostic to that variety).
DIE_STATE: Full rim break above TY and rim to the right, as the retained cud has fallen completely out of the die. Also, the crack through the tops of BERT now reaches up from the B to the rim. Lumps are noted in this crack at the top of B and E. One can imagine the strain on the die as these cracks and lumps formed, they would act as a wedge prying apart the die with each successive strike. For as the steady stream of planchets were struck, metal would be squeezed into the lumps and cracks, causing them to weaken, allowing further cuds and rapid deterioration of the die.

DESCRIP: A very late die state of this coin, with two obverse rim breaks above BE and TY. However, the coin is wholly porous and suffers from a deep gouge through Liberty's hair, from the ribbon knot to her neck. Also, there is a shallow scrape below L. It is possible that this coin spent a number of years temporarily misplaced in the ground, then was unearthed with the aid of a shovel, which may have struck the coin, causing the gouge. The reverse is free of contact marks, but is evenly porous, similar to the obverse. 79.14
DIE_STATE: As more coins were struck, the lumps over B and E caused the next major step in the obverse dies retirement. The striking action forced yet another cud over BE, similar to the one over TY. Curiously, the area over ERT has also broken and begun to sink, with this soon-to-be-cud section struck ~~<BI>lower<MI>~~ than the surrounding field as the chip began to fall from the die. It apparently required several strikes before the chip completely fell out, and during the process the field where the cud forms is the sharpest struck part of the coin, as this chip in the die is below the fields surrounding. 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9

DESCRIP: Light tan color and very pleasing for this date and variety. Identifiable by a tiny mark below the first star. An extremely rare variety, with about 15 coins known in all grades, only half of which grade above Very Good. This is one of the Finest Known examples to survive, tied with a couple of others in a similar state of preservation. Richard Picker discovered this variety way back in 1954 and in spite of long publication and a large number of collectors seeking an example, only a few have turned up. It is clear why the reverse die was replaced by the next example, and all known show die cracks above MERI. Of the major varieties offered in this collection, this one is the rarest of the Turban Heads, and by far the most difficult to find in high grade. Plated in both editions of Roger's books, both obverse and reverse. A coin of this caliber will always command attention, and well it should, for it is a great rarity which simply has not been found in better condition.

DIE_STATE: On the reverse, the engraver used heavy set up lines to place the legend properly, and then failed to efface these lines. They are clear between D S, S O and F A in the legend. One can imagine the engraver carefully placing the letters and tapping the punch into the die. He had a little trouble with I2, and examination reveals three lines on the right side of the post where the punch shifted minutely with each tap of the hammer.

FEATURES: TERMINAL DIE STATE OF 1809 COHEN-1

DATE: 1809

MINT_MK:

GRADE_TEXT: Cohen-1. Rarity 6. Very Fine 20. Another. <BI>Major rim break over MERI. $4.35-grams.

GRADE_QUAL: VF

GRADE_NO: 20 25 net 15 52 56

DESCRIP: Dark chocolate brown color on either side and with pleasing surfaces on the obverse. The reverse has one file mark or bump from the base of F2, the wreath to the top of the cud between ER as illustrated. Also, a shallow scratch is noted below ITE. Well centered and struck on the obverse, the only weakness is on the lower curls atop Liberty's shoulder, the reverse is a bit off-center toward the top. An extraordinary coin, not only is it a great rarity in this grade, but it is one of the only a few known with the cud reverse break. Certainly in the Condition Census and one of the most important coins in this collection.

DIE_STATE: The die break over MERI has given way to a fully rounded cud. Also, the crack continues over CA to the rim, but it is not known if this piece later becomes a cud or if the die was promptly retired after the first major cud appeared. Likely one of the last struck.

DESCRIP: Dark fields with lighter devices and wholly porous on ~~either~~ side. The rim and fields are battered from long immersion in soil or some other hostile environment to coin collectors. Too much detail is clear to warrant a grade of Basal State 1, but this example is not significantly better than this entry grade level. Nevertheless, the cud over MERI is clear, even fully rounded. If the prior examples would break your budget, then perhaps this is the coin to fill in your variety set with.
DIE_STATE: Heavy cud over MERI, identical to the previous example. They must have been struck only a few coins apart, back on that day in 1809.

As Roger noted in both editions of his book, this variety is scarce above Very Fine, and this is the only readily obtainable grade for most collectors.

DESCRIP: Medium brown and pleasing, although the surfaces have an average number of circulation marks. Probably cleaned long ago and now retoned, with a few lighter areas, on either side. A good, affordable coin to represent this scarce variety.
DIE_STATE: Early die state, before both dies were reground. One curious fact to note is the line from the left edge of Liberty's neck to the upper ribbon. This was caused by a flaw in the master hub prepared by John Reich. Perhaps Robert Scot (who Reich hoped to replace as head engraver) had a hand in this flaw. Whatever the case, this flaw can be seen on 1809 Cohen-6, 1811 Cohen-1, and others to a lesser extent of this period. ^{1809, 1811 Cohen-1}

DESCRIP: Glossy fields that boast original mint color and frosty luster. Struck after the dies were lapped down, reducing the crispness of the devices. Rarely encountered in Mint State, this example should attract strong bidding from specialists in the series. Plated in the 1982 edition of Roger's <MI>American Half Cents<M> as the "Late State", both obverse and reverse.
DIE_STATE: As a common practice in the mint, after the dies appear to have worn or develop rust marks in the fields, they are often removed and filed down<197>lapped to remove the stray marks. The result is often weak detail on the devices, as seen on the coin here. Liberty's upper curls have been reduced shallow, indistinct lumps above her coronet. On the reverse, several leaves have all but disappeared, and the ribbon at the base of the wreath is now very weak. The dies simply didn't have the detail to produce the usual high quality definition of the early strikes, and these dies were soon retired to the dust bin of history.

Many collectors like to assemble sets of these rotated reverse dies, based on the number of degrees from normal. From those offered here, a great variety exist! GRADE_QUAL: MS
GRADE_NO: 60
DESCRIP: Medium brown with hints of subdued mint color in the fields near the devices. A glass reveals trivial specks on the obverse, a few more on the reverse, as usual for copper. There is no question that Mint State 1810's are scarce. Roger knew of only seven when he updated his <MI>American Half Cents<M> in 1982. Others report more, often with color or surface problems. So when a nice one like this appears, be prepared to pay a premium for this quality. Well struck on Liberty's curls, but weak on the right stars and AMERICA, as the dies became misaligned, thereafter failing to strike up the right side of the coin. An elegant composition by John Reich, supposedly his mistress represents Liberty.
DIE_STATE: Late die state with the crack through TED STATES, another from the center of Liberty's jaw to her middle curls, and the ever present one through stars six and seven to her upper curl.

GRADE_NO: 4/

DESCRIP: Struck about 5% off-center toward 3 o'clock and with the reverse die rotated nearly 270<198> clockwise. Some craters above the third star, a shallow scratch across Liberty and a scrape over stars five through seven. Also, there are two pits on the top of Liberty. The reverse cleaner, with a single rim mark over T3. Furthermore, the reverse is centered! How this one was made is a bit of a mystery, and hence Roger's interest in it. On balance, ~~not that bad, and~~ acceptable for the grade. One to study and enjoy without spending a fortune.

DIE_STATE: Apparently the late die state, with weak legend, but the condition makes it difficult to ascertain.

DESCRIP: Choice milk chocolate color throughout. Well struck and centered with about half of the obverse stars showing their radial lines. One tiny scratch from the second star to the rim, another on the back of E3. Both sides show minute evidence of scraping, perhaps to reduce trivial corrosion spots. All this is perhaps overkill, since the surfaces and strike of this very scarce coin are quite average for the grade. Roger believed that approximately 3/4 of the existing coins are this early state. Plated in the first edition (obverse and reverse) of his book, and a very important coin indeed.

DIE_STATE: Early die state before the obverse cracks from the rim through the first four stars. One of the many curiosities of early coinage is the date 1811. For some reason, many of the obverse dies produced from Half Cents through Half Eagles have all four digits leaning distinctly to the left. They appear to be bending in a strong gust of wind. Perhaps the engraver was three sheets to the wind when engraving these dies. Whatever the case, a date set of 1811 coinage has a very distinctive flavor when compared with years prior or after.

DESCRIP: Details of a higher grade but both sides have been entirely stripped and burnished, likely to reduce corrosion. Now toned a pleasant tan to brown, but all devices are mushy from the processing. Plated in the second edition of Roger's book, obverse only. As this obverse continued to strike more and more coins, a crack formed along the first four obverse stars. Another crack developed from the rim to the second star. Suddenly, <M1>Bang!<M> a chip broke off the die creating this two star cud. It wasn't long before another chip broke away, creating the familiar and ever-popular four star cud. Only a few have been found with the two star cud, it was first discovered by Roger in 1953, and even with extensive publication no high grade ones have been found. Like the 1804 Cohen-6, this variety is frequently collected by these spectacular die states, with the two star break being one of the most difficult to locate.

DIE_STATE: The obverse cud has formed from the rim before Liberty's bust, covering three points of star one and two points of star two.

GRADE_NO: 45

DESCRIP: A beautiful coin, not only because of the full strike, but enchanting dark chocolate color provides a tantalizing background for this most spectacular die break. Duly noted as "quite rare" in the Gilbert reference book <M1>The United States Half Cents<M> back in 1916, this variety has been immortalized since its appearance there on plate IV. The only comparable obverse die failures are 1796 Cohen-1 (the No Pole) and 1797 Cohen-1, both of which exhibit die cracks, not mountainous cuds as seen here. Other cuds exist on obverse dies, but few can compare with the notariety or just plain Texas size of this extensive break. What's more, Roger believed about a quarter of the mintage of 1811 Cohen-1 has this cud, making it obtainable in various grades by all serious collectors of Half Cents. Plated in Roger's second edition, this particular example has few identifying marks; one tiny scratch connects the base of the L to the top of the I on the obverse, while the reverse has a small planchet flake below the left foot of A3. Always popular with collectors and certain to bring a strong price, which it wholeheartedly deserves.

DIE_STATE: In addition to the towering cud from the rim to the outer three points of stars one through three, and two points of star four, a crack extends along the outer points of star four through seven. Another crack is faint through the outer points of stars ten through thirteen. Perhaps if the mint had continued to strike coins, there may have been an <B1>eleven star cud.

Scattered marks, none of consequence, and within reach of the low end of the Condition Census for the variety. Weak at the tops of TED STA and opposing obverse stars. A coin for the specialist and worthy of the finest collection.

DIE_STATE: Struck after the dies had clashed, with some of the wreath visible around Liberty's lower curls. No trace of the reverse cracks, as described on the later coins. Coinage of Half Cents stopped after 1811, as the mint had finally run out of Boulton & Watt Half Cent planchets. Few 1811's were saved in high grade, and most circulated to low grades and are frequently plagued with corrosion and other problems.

DESCRIP: Here is another lovely 1811 Half Cent. The fields show traces of faded mint color and the balance of the coin is a nice light tan. A tiny nick on Liberty's chin ~~(and who doesn't have one of these?)~~ identifies this as the plate coin for the second edition of <M>American Half Cents.<M> A pair of shallow scratches extend across the lower obverse. Always popular for its low mintage and one of the most difficult dates to find without major problems. An important acquisition for the aficionado of these historic pieces.

Another tiny fleck is located above 1 on the reverse and these are about the only signs of contact on this coin. I 2

DIE_STATE: An important late die state on the reverse. The crack extends both left (slightly) and right to the rim from the top of F. Another crack connects the tops of MER and hints exist between AM that it continues there. others in the lettering and devices. Plated in the first Rarity 3 variety, even in this grade.

DIE_STATE: Early die state before the obverse die cracked vertically through the uppermost curl of Liberty down to her shoulder curl. A trace of obverse die rust between and below the RT on the obverse. Examination reveals a curious lump on the edge, resulting from a weak or broken seam in the collar.
This lump is located on the edge near star twelve, and is present on most of the coins from this variety (it is not often one has ten examples of this variety spread out at a given moment for study, thereby confirming the collar break). This collar break is very similar to those seen on DESCRIP: Lovely light brown color on either side. However, there are some shallow scratches and a number of gouges on and below Liberty, as illustrated. What is wonderful about this coin is the obverse cud break. For the die has now failed, a large chip has fallen away encompassing the fourth and fifth stars. An impressive coin in spite of its minor problems. Only five or so are known, this coin rated as the second best with the break. Clearly, the mint didn't make many once this die broke. Very rare and desirable.

DIE_STATE: The popular authors of Half Cents only refer to the cud break, apparently none are known with a crack where the cud forms. Perhaps some dolt dropped the obverse die after attempting yet another regrinding, or more likely, the obverse just gave way, breaking apart under the repeated striking pressures.

GRADE_TEXT: Cohen-2. Rarity 2. About Uncirculated 50. Twelve stars; outer berry below left stand of M.

GRADE_QUAL: AU

GRADE_NO: 50 ✓

DESCRIP: Choice color and surfaces which boast much of their original luster. Always popular for the twelve star obverse, an engraving error which apparently went unnoticed at the mint. Most examples have poorly struck stars on the left side, but this coin has part of the radial lines visible on all stars. As usual, minor weakness below T2 in the wreath, and also below CA.

DIE_STATE: This appears to be an early die state. A glass is required to study the minute detail enumerated herein: one tiny lump beneath star thirteen, just right of the right edge of Liberty's lowest curl, another midfield between star twelve and her ribbon end. More importantly, a die file mark extends vertically through the upper left serif of I, out its middle on the right, fades out, then continues through the lower left serif of T1, fades out again, reappears under the outer leaf under E1. Another die file mark, at the same angle (nearly vertical) from the bottom left serif of A1, through its center, forming a lump just above the crossbar on the right, fading in and out along the upper left serif of T3 to the rim. Several letters on the reverse show strong doubling.

When dies are prepared using master hubs or other engraving tools, a number of rough areas and burrs need to be removed from the surfaces before coins can be struck. These protuberances are filed down, then the die is polished, making the fields smooth. However, on many dies file marks remain, appearing as raised lines similar to die breaks, but fade as more and more coins are struck, coupled with repolishing to remove clash marks.

At the base of the coin below the wreath, some of the spotting has been removed by gently buffing. Still and all, a beautiful coin even with its isolated problems.

Identifiable by a mark between the sixth star and Liberty's forehead, another on the reverse below T1. Although 2,200 are reported as being struck in Mint records, this seems unlikely as only about 15 are known of this business strike die pairing in addition to several Proofs. Always in demand and a long known as one of the great rarities in the Half Cent series.

DIE_STATE: So few were struck that the dies had no time to break. One of the curious features of this reverse die is the extra base of E below the wreath under E2. This oddity was discovered by Jules Reiver in 1976 using an 1832 Cohen-1 (which used the same reverse die as this 1831). Only the lower serif is clear, the balance of the letter is hidden by the wreath above.

Actually a token struck during the panic of 1837, when most coinage disappeared from circulation as the United States economy sunk into a terrible business depression. As is often the case, ingenious Americans will take matters into their own hands when government fails to fulfill its mandated obligations. Regular coinage was eagerly hoarded by consumers, and businessmen resorted to all sorts of tokens in order to make change. Otherwise business would have been reduced to barter. Included in the <MI>Guidebook<M> and always popular as the only available Half Cent token (most tokens were Large Cent size and weight).

6. First star close to bust; large berries. 5-58 grams.

GRADE_QUAL: BP

GRADE_NO: 60 ✓

DESCRIP: Dark brown toning in the obverse fields combines with the frosty Liberty to produce an excellent cameo contrast. The reverse is also toned, but the wreath and parts of the fields retain a fiery red color. Identifiable by a staple scratch from Liberty's mouth extending up the curl behind her eye, the back down to her jaw. On the reverse, a small planchet flake resides above the left upper serif of T2. Normal hairlines for the grade, but with ample eye appeal to bring a premium. Roger Cohen categorized Proof Half Cents by die variety and by the chief coiner of the mint under whose stewardship they were struck. These new varieties are detailed in the second edition of <M>American Half Cents<M> which was printed in 1982. For this 1836, about 30 are known today of this initial production (originals).

DIE_STATE: Chief coiner Adam Eckfeldt continued the tradition of striking Brilliant Proof examples of coinage for dignitaries and other parties who expressed interest. Only a handful were produced, some years more than others, as demand dictated. Later, as interest grew in obtaining these early Brilliant Proofs, certain mint employees rounded up dies and struck off a few more, creating "restrikes".

GRADE_QUAL: BP

GRADE_NO: 63 ✓

DESCRIP: A lovely Brilliant Proof, nearly full red in color, with just a whisper of brown forming on the upper devices. The obverse is truly beautiful, but the reverse has some hairlines in the fields. Identifiable by a short lint mark down from the front corner of Liberty's eye, another on her chin and lastly a vertical one on her neck. Well struck, as is one would expect from a Brilliant Proof, and worthy of a top-notch collection. One of the most alluring coins in this entire series.

DIE_STATE: Struck before the reverse die was reground and therefore all of the ribbon is sharp (later, when this die was reground

Today, about 30 pieces are known of this die pairing, and this is one of the most beautiful.

DIE_STATE: Late die state with the obverse crack extending from the rim near star two, through stars three to six and out the rim above star seven. Apparently the planchets were reeded, then struck using a plain collar, which crushed the reeding. A glass reveals evidence of the reeding.

DESCRIP: Choice red and brown color and very pleasing surfaces. A glass will locate a few stray marks, but nothing worthy of note. Free of heavy spotting, and only minimal specks can be found. Perfect to represent the date.

DIE_STATE: Early die state with a trace of the recut 1 left of the lower serif.

DESCRIP: Subdued mint red on both sides and quite pleasing, in fact, this coin is an excellent match for the preceeding in the color department. As Half Cent production draws to a close, many were saved as the last of their kind, accounting for the number of Mint State coins available today. Nominal handling marks on both the obverse and reverse, and, a curious lint mark above the 4 and another in the right obverse field. Plated in the second edition of Roger's book, both obverse and reverse.

DIE_STATE: Later die state than the preceeding, the repunching on 1 no longer visible. 1 - P 60 1

GRADE_QUAL: MS

GRADE_NO: 60 ✓

DESCRIP: Mostly red with only a few areas turning light tan. As usual, the dentils are weakly struck on the obverse and most of the reverse. Excellent surfaces, which are nearly free of marks, but both sides have numerous tiny spots.

DIE_STATE: Early enough die state to show the recutting on the second 5, but the spur on the dentil over E3 is weak.

GRADE_TEXT: Judd-177. Rarity 5. Brilliant Proof 60. Copper Nickel. Plain edge. Regular dies. 4.51 grams.

GRADE_QUAL: BP

GRADE_NO: 60

DESCRIP: A beautiful example of this scarce issue, flaming red orange color on both sides. Well struck, although using nickel in the planchet made it very hard, hence some of the dentils and parts of the upper devices are a touch weak. Minor verdigris is noted in the devices, mostly discernable with a glass. The planchet is thinner than the regular issue, and lighter weight.

DIE_STATE: These were struck as an experiment by Director Snowden in order to find a better alloy to replace bronze, used on Half Cents and Large Cents until this time, and based on these, the adapted alloy was changed in early 1857.

DESCRIP: Although one of the more "common" Brilliant Proof Half Cents, this coin should still elicit strong bidding for its glowing red color and mark-free surfaces.
